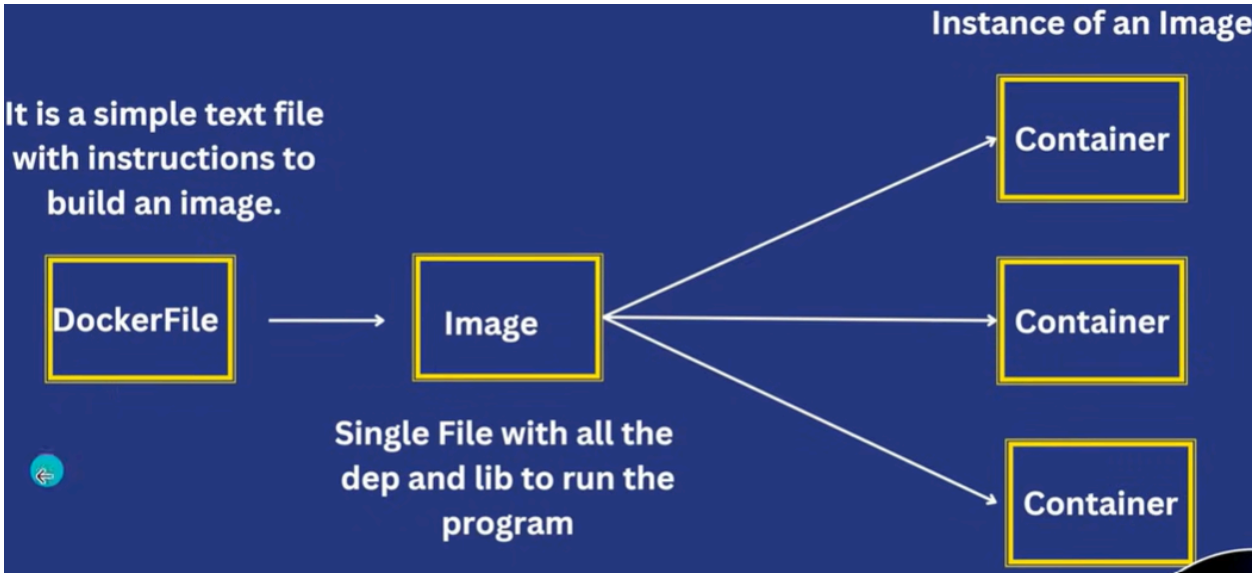
What is Dockerfile



After Developer creating the entire application with the help of docker, then developer creates a docker file, where developers writes all the instruction in docker file, instruction for running the application like what services, tools, what commands are necessary, how to run the application, all the information written in Dockerfile.
By using DockerFiler creates a Image, where we can transfer Image to team or server.